The project aims to involve 10 participants from 5 countries to execute and moderate 2 intercultural camps for local young people. The participating countries are Turkey, Armenia, Iceland, Serbia and Italy. The main aims are to develop local youngsters' sensitivity of interculturalism, level of communicating in English and self-confidence. This programme was created as in the formal education system; there isn't enough time for youth to practice their intercultural and foreign language skills with interactive and creative methods. Our organization strongly believes in the effectiveness of creative, interactive non-formal and informal learning methods, so it was strongly reasonable to set up a programme which involves foreign volunteers with experiences towards teenagers and training, motivation and strong English skills.

We are looking for open-minded and trustworthy volunteers willing to share their culture with professional interactive methods involving games, developing foreign language skills, presentations, inside and outside activities. Volunteers' main tasks will be to lead and moderate the English camps, fill in the time with useful contents and to practice English with the participants.
